What Happens to Birds When They Die?

Join the Bitterroot Audubon Society at their November meeting for a program on the process of preparing study skins of birds, presented by Larry Weeks, Education Chairman for Five Valleys Audubon.

Hundreds of birds die annually from natural causes as well as numerous accidents. Learning what happens to these birds and, perhaps, what you can do if you find a dead bird will be topics of Larry's presentation. He will show many of his specimens and discuss how some of the birds died (such as collisions with windows, fences, cars, and trains and from electrocution). The birds to be shown include ducks, hawks, owls, falcons and a wide variety of song birds. Larry will explain the different techniques he used to mount the birds and point out identification marks. Larry has a salvage permit from the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, and has skinned more than 200 birds over the last nine years.

Habitat Restoration Projects Take Place

By Sherry Ritter

This year, projects funded by Bitterroot Audubon's Riparian Habitat program helped restore riparian habitat at three locations within the Bitterroot River Important Bird Area (IBA). One project contributed native shrubs planted as part of a stream bank restoration project near Stevensville. This project, on land owned by three families, received a lot of press this spring. A number of volunteers from Bitterroot Audubon helped out. Another project involved pulling Hound's Tongue and other noxious weeds from two properties north of Bell Crossing. A third restoration project took place this fall on the Bitterroot Springs Ranch, where eight small enclosures were completed. The enclosures give native shrubs a chance to grow without browsing pressure by deer.

Volunteers set up exclosures on the Bitterroot River IBA.

There are still funds left for riparian habitat projects within the IBA. We also welcome proposals requesting volunteer help. Proposals are due April 13, 2012. Proposal forms can be obtained from Sherry Ritter, s287ritter@mac.com, 777-7409.

Becky Peters: The Powerhouse Behind the 2013 BAS Calendar

I want to say a special Thank You to Becky Peters for all her hard work in creating and developing the first BAS calendar and for managing and selling them. There are fewer than 80 left!! Becky joined the BAS Board a little over one year ago and since then has taken on being our representative to the Montana Audubon Board, assisted with several IBA projects and then had the vision and fortitude to bring about the calendar. The proceeds, over $2000 at this point, will go to the Education and Scholarship funds. We are so lucky to have Becky with us.

News and Notes

Long-billed Curlew observers needed!

Did you observe Long-billed Curlews in the Bitterroot Valley this past year? The Montana Natural Heritage Program is working to compile curlew observations from across the state. Currently, the Bitterroot Valley represents a big void in their records. Want to contribute your observations? Contact Kate Stone for more information (krosetone@hotmail.com; 381-1115).

Winter Raptor Routes

Do you count the hawks perching on telephone poles on your drive to work? Bitterroot Audubon will again be looking for volunteers to conduct driving surveys to document raptor populations over wintering in the Bitterroot Valley. Last year Citizen Science volunteers documented hundreds of over wintering raptors. Participants generally commit to a route of their choosing four times in the winter season. If you are interested in participating in this project, please contact Kate Stone (krosetone@hotmail.com; 381-1115) to discuss route options.

Want to learn about winter raptors in the Bitterroot Valley? Have you always wanted to learn more about bird identification?

We will be offering two workshops in 2013: A Winter Raptor Workshop and a Beginning Birding Workshop. Watch upcoming newsletters for dates and specific information about each workshop.

The Bitterroot Audubon 2013 Calendar Going Fast!

Bitterroot Audubon has a beautiful 2013 Calendar to sell! This calendar can be found in Hamilton at the Chapter One Bookstore, and Art Focus; in Stevensville at Lisa Archer's Silks; in Darby at Darby Wine and Spirits; and in Missoula at Montana Natural History Center and at BAS meetings. They are only $15 and the artists are local Bitterroot photographers, local school children and of course, our local Bitterroot birds!! All the proceeds go to the BAS Educational and Scholarship Funds. The Calendars are going fast, so get one before they are gone! For more information contact Becky Peters at 369-5210.
